1. What is the nature of the problem for Donald Trump?

Mental illness

2. How does he explain this shooting happened?

Budgets issues. Many cutbacks in New York state as well as in many other places. As a result sick people were released from mental institutions.

3. These people should be HOSPITALIZED because THEY DON'T HAVE THE MONEY TO TAKE CARE OF THEM.

4. What is done today and what was done in the past as far as these people are concerned?

Today:

- These people can be found roaming the streets
- But also at work, among ordinary/normal people = undetectable.

In the past:

They were hospitalized in mental institutions = they couldn't hurt the other citizens.

What is suggested?

They should be hospitalized again so as not to represent any danger for the others.

5. Who should be aware of any dysfunctional behavior first?

Anyone close to them, suggesting the family/relatives and friends hold some responsibility.

6. Which category of people believes it is the appropriate time to talk about the gun issue?

Those who have experienced a violent event involving guns + those who are sick and tired of watching that sort of news.

7. What does D. Trump think about the gun issue?

For him, the problem lies with sick people being released in the streets, freed from hospitals and causing violent situations. He remains focused on "it is a the mental problem, not a gun problem".

8. What would have been the solution for the victims according to D. Trump?

The men who were shot recently would have been able to defend themselves if they had had guns. They should have had guns, and they would not be dead.

9. Why could the outcome have been different?

Some of the victims were military men. Had they had guns, it would have made a difference.

10. What is his position about the banning of guns?

It is impossible to get rid of all the guns.

Law-abiding citizens would obey the law and would not use guns anymore

Whereas criminals would.

11.Expression used to refer to criminals: BAD GUYS

12.Would there have been a difference if the weapon had not been a gun?

Not for Trump. He considers the danger would be the same as a blade could have been used, which, for him, would cause the same sort of disasters.

13.What is the key word Trump uses to justify he is a Second Amendment advocate?
PROTECTION
